kilda.app | Effective: May 4, 2026 | Version 1.0

1. What This Page Covers

This page explains what you may and may not do with the data, analytics, and content available on Kilda (“the Platform”). It supplements the Platform’s Terms of Use, which govern your access to and use of the Platform as a whole. In the event of any conflict, the Terms of Use prevail.

2. What the Platform Provides

The Platform produces analytical outputs about exchange-traded funds and climate-related risks. These outputs include, but are not limited to, coverage scores, intensity metrics, stress-test results, charts, comparisons between ETFs, exposure breakdowns by country and holding, and disaggregation by risk driver. The Platform also publishes editorial content in the form of short deep dives on specific ETFs and risk themes, authored by the Platform’s collaborators.

All outputs and content are provided for educational and informational purposes only. Nothing on this Platform constitutes financial advice, investment advice, or a recommendation of any kind. For the full financial disclaimer, see Section 5 of the Terms of Use.

3. Data Accuracy and Currency

The Platform’s underlying data is updated periodically, typically on a monthly basis, without a fixed schedule. The operator makes no guarantee of accuracy, completeness, timeliness, or fitness for any particular purpose. Data may contain errors, omissions, or delays. You are responsible for independently verifying any information before relying on it.

4. What You May Do

4.1 Personal use. You may view, read, and interact with all outputs and content for your own personal, non-commercial purposes.

4.2 Citation and reference. You may cite, reference, or quote Kilda’s analytical outputs and editorial content in academic research, journalism, reports, blog posts, and similar works, provided you include the following attribution: Source: Kilda (kilda.app). No prior approval is required.

4.3 Screenshots and sharing. You may capture and share screenshots of the Platform’s outputs on social media, in presentations, or in other non-commercial contexts. Screenshots must not be altered in a way that misrepresents the Platform’s output.

5. What You May Not Do

5.1 Commercial exploitation. You may not reproduce, redistribute, sublicense, sell, or otherwise commercially exploit any output, data, or content from the Platform without prior written consent from the operator.

5.2 Systematic extraction. You may not scrape, crawl, or use automated systems to systematically extract data or outputs from the Platform.

5.3 Misrepresentation. You may not present Kilda’s outputs as your own original work or analysis. You may not alter, modify, or selectively present outputs in a manner that misrepresents what the Platform produced.

5.4 Financial products and services. You may not use the Platform’s outputs to construct, market, distribute, or sell any financial product, service, index, or investment strategy.

5.5 Framing and embedding. You may not frame, mirror, or embed the Platform or any of its pages within another website or application without prior written consent from the operator.

6. Editorial Content

Deep dives and articles published on the Platform are authored works. You may quote brief excerpts with attribution in accordance with Section 4.2. You may not reproduce an article in full or in substantial part without prior written consent from the operator.

7. Third-Party Data

Certain outputs may incorporate or derive from data obtained from third-party sources. The operator does not guarantee the accuracy or completeness of third-party data. Your use of outputs derived from third-party data is at your own risk. Any restrictions imposed by original data providers apply to your use of the relevant outputs.

8. Enforcement

The operator reserves the right to restrict or terminate access to the Platform for any user who violates these terms. The operator may pursue any available legal remedy for unauthorised use of the Platform's data, outputs, or content.
